For small-to-medium contractors & land developers

THE PROBLEM

Takeoffs are the bottleneck between you and your next win.

40–60 hrs

to take off one mid-size job

A manual quantity takeoff on a 50,000 sq ft building ties up an estimator for a full week.

60–90 days

to fill an estimator seat

Skilled estimators are among the hardest roles to hire — and small firms feel every empty chair.

1 in 5

firms turn down work

Nearly 20% of contractors decline jobs they can't bid in time. That's revenue walking out the door.

WHY IT MATTERS

Every slow takeoff is a bid you never submitted.

Contractors win roughly 1 in 4 of the jobs they bid. The math is simple: the only way to win more work is to put out more bids — but a slow takeoff process caps how many you can chase.

BURIED IN TAKEOFFS

average bid win rate

- ⚠ You spend the week measuring
- ⚠ Fewer bids go out the door
- ⚠ Faster competitors get there first

TAKEOFFS OFF YOUR PLATE

3x

more projects bid

- ✓ Plans go out the moment you get them
- ✓ You bid every job worth chasing
- ✓ More bids → more wins at the same rate

THE SOLUTION

We do your takeoffs. You focus on winning work.

Cloud, not chaos

Drag your plan set into the cloud from anywhere. No emailing huge PDFs, no version mix-ups.

Bluebeam precision

Every line, area, and count measured in Bluebeam — the standard estimators already trust.

On demand

Use us for one bid or fifty. Scale up in busy season, pay nothing when you don't.

No overhead

No software to license, no salaried estimator to carry. Pay per takeoff, per bid.

HOW IT WORKS

From plans to bid-ready in three steps.

1

Upload your plans

Send us your plan set through the cloud portal — PDFs, CAD, or a scanned bid invite. Flag the trades and scope you need counted.

2

We measure it

Our estimators perform the full quantity takeoff in Bluebeam: linear, area, count and volume — with color-coded markups you can verify at a glance.

3

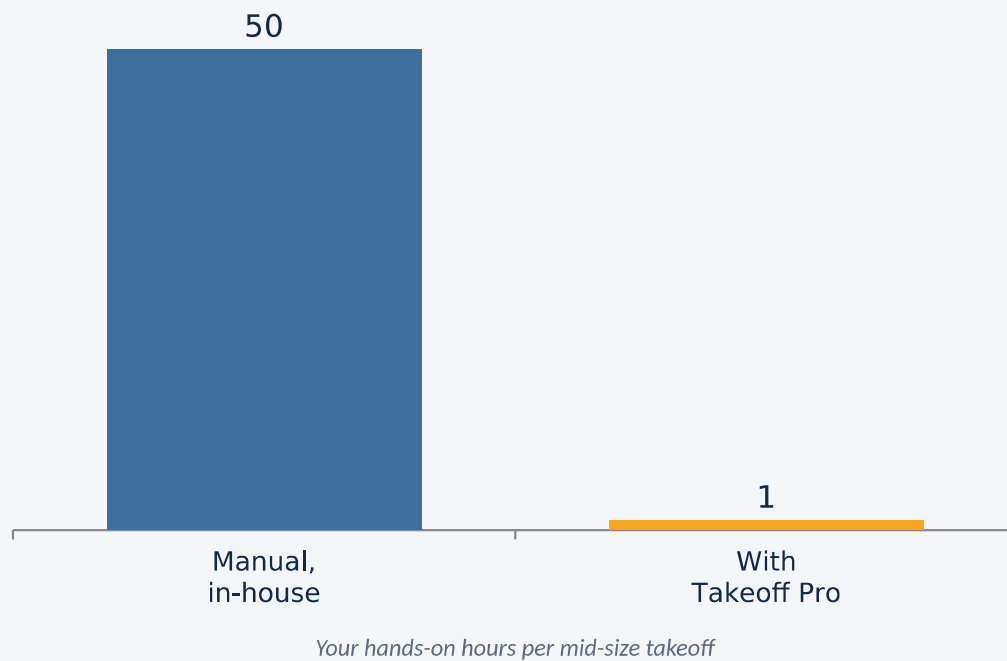

You get bid-ready numbers

Within 24–48 hours you receive an organized takeoff and marked-up set — ready to drop straight into your estimate and price the job.

SPEED

Turn plans into numbers in days, not weeks.

24-48 hrs

Typical turnaround on a takeoff — rush options when a deadline is tight.

3× more bids

Firms that take estimating off their own plate put out roughly three times the work.

15-20 hrs/wk

Time handed back to your team to chase, price and close more jobs.

ACCURACY

Numbers you can stake a bid on.

Built in Bluebeam — the takeoff standard estimators already trust.

Verifiable, color-coded markups mean nothing is double-counted and nothing is missed.

Color-coded markups

Every measurement is laid over your plans so you — and your crew — can check the count by eye.

Consistent every time

The same disciplined method on each job, instead of whoever was free that week.

No costly surprises

Under-counting kills margin; over-counting loses the bid. Accurate quantities protect both.

Crew-ready output

Hand the marked-up set straight to the field for ordering and layout.

THE BOTTOM LINE

More bids out the door. More jobs won.

Your win rate doesn't have to change. If you can bid more jobs at the same ~25% hit rate, the wins follow on their own.

Illustrative — based on industry-average 25% bid win rates. Your numbers will vary by trade and market.

PRICING

Pay per takeoff. Nothing when you're not bidding.

No software licenses. No salaried estimator. Just a clear price per bid — so takeoff cost only shows up when there's a job to win.
